Artist's Statement

"Ethereal Luminescence" is an ongoing series of abstract, expressionistic photographs that was started in the summer of 2012 at a light show and continued at fireworks shows, urban street scenes and amusement parks.

My primary mission as a fine art photographer is to stir people's emotions with compelling, beautiful images. Through its abstraction, these photographs capture the drama and excitement of the vibrant and colorful public places that we enjoy so much...a mesmerizing symphonic explosion of color, light and motion. The illustration of high energy motion with colored light using still photography creates a fusion of dynamic beauty.

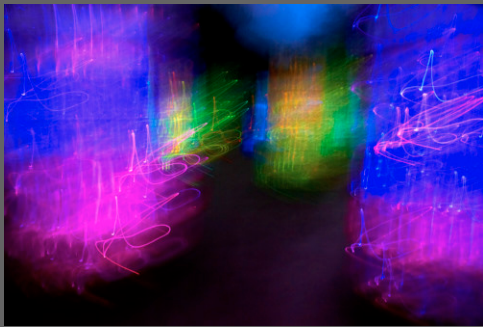

"Ethereal Luminescence" began at a botanical garden in the woods, at night, where people were viewing a light show and it evolved into capturing those feelings at many public events that use dramatic lighting. The first representational images were not beautiful or magical in any way and forced me to do some challenging experiments with camera technique. After many tests, the magic began to happen and clearly became visible on the back of the camera as colorful abstractions. Amazed show goers volunteered their comments. "Wow!" "What is that?" "This is magic!" "How did you do that?" "I can't believe the color!" "These don't look like photographs!" Recently, art critic, Anne R. Fabbri, exclaimed ... "Peter Treiber, with his 'Eternal Luminescence' series, doesn't attempt to explain how he captured his dynamic, abstract compositions in vivid, pulsating colors. But viewing them raises one's energy level— just what's needed for a post-holiday ennui."

After six years of shooting 72 events, there are now more than 18,000 images in this series. The numerous, colorful and popular gatherings make people feel good and these "Ethereal Luminescence" photographs express those feelings in a way that can be shared with many, forever.
